

Fly Away

I have put away the tears
I have held in through the years
You're not around
And I know that you're not here
But In my heart you're standing near
Smiling In the sun

But it may take a little while

As I sit here in the dark
Wondering what I could have done
To change it all
But as I move on it's so clear
That the time will soon be here
To let you know

But it may take a little while

The day I looked into your eyes
I tried to find a reason why you had to go
And leave me so
In the middle of it all.
Now I must learn to let you go

May you be a shining star
That will guide me through the night forever more
May you be the one that shines
Until the dawn
And I will finally carry on
